The 2009 Israeli Elections

Heather Stoll
Political Science, UCSB

Monday, February 9, 2009
4:00 PM - McCune Conference RM 6020 HSSB

What is at stake in the upcoming Israeli elections slated for 10 February?

In this talk, Professor Stoll will discuss how Israeli elections work (the system of government and electoral rules); who the candidates are and what kind of campaigns they have run; the likely outcomes; and, last but not least, the implications for government and policy.

Heather Stoll is an assistant professor of political science at UCSB whose research interests range from comparative politics to political methodology.

This event is sponsored by the UCSB Center for Middle East Studies, and the UCSB Department of Political Science.

Please contact Laura Pollick with any questions: cmes@cmes.ucsb.edu, 805-893-4245, http://www.cmes.ucsb.edu/